Pronunciation refers to speaking a language with appropriate stress, rhythm and intonation and it should be taught scientifically. Good pronunciation in a speech is an ornament of a person and a passport to the cultured society. The three aspects of pronunciation stress, rhythm and intonation are practically learnt through imitation. Native speakers of English link words together, often resulting in a sound disappearing, or a new sound being made. There are often some syllables stressed that wouldn't be in other languages or a different rhythm overall.

Good pronunciation and fluency is the hallmark of culture. Incessant effort is needed in this direction from the teachers and learners. The syllabus focuses over the skill of speaking and pronunciation. The examinations also tilt towards spoken abilities of the student. To develop English speaking skills: Learn new vocabulary in phrases

For example, a cup of coffee might be more useful than just learning "coffee"

INTERVIEW SKILLS:

Interviewing is a skill in and of itself, one in which your ability to interact with the interviewer and to articulate your thoughts are factors that are just as important in getting the job as are the qualifications listed on your resume. Acing an interview is a science as much as it is an art, and it requires diligent preparation. Here are few tips for better interview: Be on Time, Think before You Speak, Speak Clearly, Cohesively, and Calmly, Be Confident, Not Arrogant, Express Optimism, Both with Your Words and Your Body Language.

GROUP DISCUSSION:

A Group Discussion (GD) is a technique used by corporate companies, educational institutes, and other organizations to judge the communication skills of the participant. There are certain essential pointers that are very important to get noticed and selected in a GD. They include: Appearance, Eye Contact, Avoid Dominance, Avoid Interrupting, Clarity of Speech and Thoughts, and Irrelevant Talk.
